New Delhi: For the first time an Indian educational institute breaks into the top 10 of a global university rankings on Tuesday.

The Times Higher Education (THE) reveals India is home to one of the world's best small universities, as it made public the 2017 edition of the rankings.

Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru has been ranked eighth at the 'THE's Best Small Universities in the World 2017'. However, India's show in the ranking took a hit as well, as there were two institutions in the top 20 last year. None was in top 10, though.

IISc now joins the elite list of California Institute of Technology from the US, Ecole Normale Supérieure from France and Pohang University of Science and Technology, South Korea. The 2017 rankings highlight that small universities provide high student satisfaction and good working relationships between students and teachers.

IISc, a public university for scientific research and higher education, was established in 1909. In 2015-16 it became the first Indian institute to be ranked among the top 100 of the 'THE World University Rankings' for engineering and technology at 99th position.

Amid the new high, India has two misses. Indian Institute of Technology, Guwahati and Savitribai Phule Pune University, ranked 14 and 18 respectively in the 2016 edition, could not retain their spots in the top 20 this time.
